Thousands of plants and many kinds of animals live at Hilltop and beyond in the neighboring fields. Here's a chance to know them and to find out how they live. In Honor's work you learn how to grow herbs, fruit and flowers. You experiment in your garden. You read interesting science books. Advanced Honor's work will help you understand tougher science problems. You make a record of your garden experiences; you learn how to record neatly and accurately what you do, see and hear. Field trips to parks, farms, quarries and people's gardens help you to know your town.

TURDAYS: In the Vegetable Gardens. Also, Business in the Gardenhouse.

HILLTOP, THE JUNIOR GARDEN WORKSHOP

This is a leisure science program for the community's youth and a teacher training field laboratory for the Botany Department, Indiana University. Its sponsors, City Department of Parks and Recreation and the Bloomington Garden Club, give every boy and girl an opportunity to better understand the living world around him by actively working with it in his leisure.

IN THE SUMMER...

Three mornings weekly: Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Tuesday mornings, in the vegetable gardens; Thursday mornings, Hilltop Honors work; Saturday mornings, "business" at the gardenhouse and problems in the vegetable gardens.

HILLTOP HONORS... I PLEBE TO DO A LITTLE BIT MORE THAN MY SHARE. This activity helps everyone to develop good gardencraft and to widen one's knowledge of gardening and natural science. Veterans work on science projects. Everyone has a chance to read science books. Gardeners grow resourceful as they learn to share responsibilities.

IN THE FALL... Hilltop's program ends the first week in August. The vegetable plots are cleared and the giant checkerboard of plots is seeded with winter rye. The Achievement Day Party is held in early November. AWARDS of certificates, honor ribbons, silver cups, the gardener's spade, honor's plaque, the mayor's key and scout badges are presented on this occasion.
